RECENT CASES INDICATE IT

John Burke's Death Was Evidently Caused from a Blow by Highwaymen.

MAY BE PIERSON WAS SO KILLED.

Aged William Collins Also Found Unconscious, Only This Morning, in a Hallway,

The belief is steadily gaining ground that a gang of "sand-baggers" is again at work in the metropolis. Years ago that class of highwaymen and footpads operated in almost every section of th city, but one by one they were captured or driven away by the then Inspector

Moo's boast that the sand-bar, as weapon, had practically gone out of ex-istence. Events of the past few weeks, however, go to show that it is again being employed to strike down the rob victims and to leave no mark that The death of John Burke, in the Roosevelt Hospital Monday morning, gives strength to the belief. At first when he was taken there his deemed an ordinary case of intoxication, but the autopsy held yesterday shows Burke was struck with some kind of a weapon, in all probability a sandbag, which rendered him unconscious and which kept him in that condition until he died. Ward Detective Thompson. of the West Forty-seventh street police station, who has charge of the case, is working on that line Sandbaggers Killed Burke.

When Burke was taken to the hospital a careful examination was made by the physicians, but not a mark of any kind was found on his body. After death, however, the autopsy was performed by Deputy Coroner Huber. He found that the man had received a bad fracture of Had the fracture been caused by a fall er by some blunt instrument, it must have made some outward mark. The ce of such, however, points to the one conclusion that a sand-bag was An "Evening World" reporter started

It was about 7 o'clock that night when a boy, who lives in the house 503 West. Forty-second street, noticed a man leading an apparently drunken companion into a hallway. The boy told his mother of the occurrence, but she did nothing. The drunken man was Burke. There are three families in the house named, and the ground floor is occupied by G. W. Glanini as a paint and oil store. One of the latter's employees is L. Bracken, whose duty it is to open the store every morning. May 14 he got to the place at 7 A. M. and was informed that the drunken man was still in the hallway. Bracken wanted to get him out and tried to awaken the man, but failed.

He noticed at the time that the man had neither hat, cost nor shoes; nor were these articles to be found anywhere.

Bracken called in Policeman Kear, who was on post, and both tried to grouse Burke, who had then been lying in the hallway over twelve hours. It was so when the officer called a wagon and took, the man over to the police and the man, called an ambulance and had him taken to the hospital. His clothing was searched, but no money was found in his posession.

L'aually the neighborhood where Burke was found lying unconscious is peaceable, but within the past few weeks petty thieves have been at work. Ash cans have been stolen from nearly every door. Cases of assault, however, tamed is one door from Tenth avenue, and horne cars pass at all hours of the day and night.

It looks as if Burke had been attacked by somebody, who not only robbed him of his money but also stole his hat, shoes and clothing. The police are trying to locate these articles.

William P. Robinson, forty-nine years old, living with his wife at 74 West Onand Fourth street, was remanded for examination in the Tombs Police Court this morning on the charge of having embezzied over $10,000 from Tillottson & Sons, literary purveyors, of Temple Court, Beekman street. nearly six years he had been manager of the New York office.

The arrest was made last night at Robinson's house by Detective-Sergis. Titus and Krauch, of the Central Office. A representative of the law firm of Butler, Stillwell & Hubbard, who are the legal advisers for Tillottson & called at Police Headquarters vosterday afternoon. He told Detective-Sergt, Mc Cluskey of Robinson's defalcation, and said he understood Robinson was about to leave for Chicago. Detectives Titus ... Ro ... W. and Krauch corroborated this fact when hand they arrested Robinson.

He was neatly dressed in dark clothes, a brown overcoat, a brown derby hat and were a natty blue scarf. He was transferred to the New York office from the London office of the firm. He is afflicted with locomotor ataxia and can walk with difficulty. He had to be supported by the detectives when ar-

The firm Tillottson & Sons designate business as "literary purveyors." They buy and sell stories for magazines, books for publishers and similar transactions in a literary line.

Robinson worked for them on con mission, and the first suspicion they had that anything was wrong was about a month ago. Said They Paid Their Bills.

They sent statements of accounts due to several of their patrons, and were surprised to hear that the accounts had been paid to Robinson, Investigation showed that none of these payments had been accounted for by him and thorough examination of his accounts was made

Among the people who had paid him was Walter L. Thompson, a lawyer, of 246 Broadway, who had given Robinson a check for $1,300 in payment of accounts against his clients.

It was soon discovered that Robin son's defalcation would reach $10,000, and might exceed that amount and William Brumlow, the manager of the London office, which is the principal office of the firm, was notified. Detective Titus told a reporter that ten days ago the firm had taxed Robin-son with the defalcation and had received from him a written confession. Confessed His Defaication. In this confession Robinson said that work. IDAM. ROZELLE, Armenia Union, N. 1 the stealing had gone on for over a year,

They were directed to prefer charges against Ebner to the District-Attorney.

O'Rourke built a backsmith's shop for Ebner on April 4, the latter agreeing to pay $155. Ebner, according to O'Rourke's story, had falsely arrested him, in a hope he would give up the claim.

Thomas McGrath, of 21 Crotora place, swore that Ebner asked him to induce O'Rourke to take $125, and give a receipted bill for the $275, in consideration of not being prosecuted for stealing the tools.

The young men went to the District-Attorney's office. O'Rourke's father is worth $100,000. He wrote if they would give him time

When Robinson was arraigned in court this morning, his eyes were swoilen and red with excessive weeping. Titus asked that he be remanded until to-morrow, to emble him to complete the evidence, and Justice Voorhis was about to remand Robinson in Titus's care when Robinson asked that he be committed to the Tombs, so that he could receive medical attention.

He said he desired to have counsel before he was formally arraigned, as he thought he bad an excellent defense, one that was so strong he thought he would be exculpated.

Remanded Until To-Morrow. Justice Voorhis thereupon remanded him to the Tombs in defauit of $3,000 bail, for examination to-morrow morning at 9 o'clock.
